PROPOSED REMARKS FOR THE DIRECTOR OF TRAINING TO MAKE TO PROJECT USEFUL BEFORE INTRODUCING GENERAL CABELL

Good Morning. As Director of Training it is particularly nice to welcome you to CIA. Project USEFUL is another briefing and orientation that this agency has developed at the request of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. We also present special briefings for the Department of State and other Government agencies when requested to do so.

This is the fourth running of Project USEFUL. Each year we are able to improve it, and each year it appears that the Joint Chiefs are able to bring together a more representative group. When you have a chance to meet those sitting beside you, you will find that represented here in this room are four overseas commands, three service schools, representatives from the senior staffs of the four services here in Washington and other special planning groups. This wide representation is good. The purpose of this presentation is to acquaint you who are working with us in the field, and in Washington, with our particular and peculiar mission and then to tell you how we are set up to accomplish this mission. Then, we will tell you what degree of success we have attained in realizing our objectives.

Our Deputy Director of Central Intelligence, ^{LT} Gen. Cabell, who was formerly Director of Intelligence, USAF will also welcome you now. He is here this morning in the place of Mr. Dulles, who is briefing The President and the National Security Council. Gentlemen, - General Cabell.
